Dear Lucy,

Re: Product Neutrality Certificate

I am writing to clarify the validity of the product neutrality certificates and the way in which they are issued.

As you are aware, your current certificate has now expired. However, you are currently in the process of recertification and therefore your certificate will be valid for the period during which you are going through the recertification process. Therefore, I can confirm that your extended certificate is valid until 30th December 2023. This is normal practice because our methodology is based around compliance periods for the assessment. It is therefore not possible to complete the assessment process for recertification until your current certificate has expired.

This letter serves to clarify to any stakeholders that may enquire about your certificate validity. If there are any stakeholders that wish to clarify this directly with the Carbon Trust, they are welcome to contact me by email at Matt.Kitching@carbontrust.com.

Yours sincerely,
